P A Safety Management Limited announces joint venture with Kotuku to provide environmental services branded PASM:Kotuku

P A Safety Management Limited, a well-established health and safety management company, is pleased to announce that it has expanded its product range to include environmental services. This new joint venture with Kotuku, an environmental organisation promoting sustainable resource management in the construction industry, is branded PASM:Kotuku.

PASM:Kotuku offers a full range of environmental management products, including impact assessments, site audits, system reviews, workshops, documentation, competence, marketing, monitoring and training. This includes the innovative Café Van which presents environmental issues to the site workforce during the tea break.

Health and Safety and Environmental Impact are issues that affect the day to day running of every commercial enterprise. Traditionally they have been considered as separate agendas, managed in isolation from each other. Paulo Anaia, Managing Director of P A Safety Management Limited, challenges this view. He states, "We see both disciplines as complimentary: health and safety concerns the welfare of the current generation and environmental management concerns the welfare of future generations." Kotuku's Andrew Pears adds, "It is only by addressing these as a single unit that credible and fundamental change will take place within companies to give them a cutting edge advantage in their relationships with their staff, suppliers and clients."
